

PRIVATE FUNERAL SERVICE HELD FOR QUEEN ALEXANDRA

Wives in Room Where Body Lies Attended by King George and Near Relatives.

LONDON SERVICE IN TWO WEEKS

Body of Widow of King Edward Will Be Placed in Vault in Windsor Castle.

SANDRINGHAM, England, Nov. 21.—Private family services for the late Queen Alexandra were held today by her chaplain, Rev. Dr. Grant, in the bedroom at Sandringham House, where she died last night. The King and Queen, and other near relatives attended. Dr. F. J. Williams, who attended the Queen in her fatal illness, told the Associated Press: "Queen Alexandra was unconscious to the last. She uttered no word. The end was the most peaceful anyone could desire."

A singular coincidence occurred in connection with the death. The Queen's book of Sandringham House, in use for 35 years, was completed, the final signature on the page being made within a few hours of the Queen's passing.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The British Empire is in mourning over the passing of the beloved Dowager Queen Alexandra. Flares flew at half mast in London today, and many buildings were draped in black.

Death came to the Danish Princess late yesterday afternoon in Sandringham Palace, while her husband, King George, and Queen Mary, and other members of the royal household stood by her bedside. The Princess of Wales, always her devoted grandchild, was delayed by heavy fog, as he traveled from London to Sandringham, and did not reach the palace in time to attend the funeral.

It is only when a member of royalty dies that the clang of the bell in St. Paul's Cathedral is heard. Numerous social functions arranged for last night were canceled. The theaters did not receive the news in time to close. In the motion picture houses funeral marches were played.

No date has been announced for the funeral. The body will be taken to Windsor Castle to lie in state in the late Edward VII. It is expected, however, that the funeral will be held for two weeks.

13 More Wet Spots In New York Padlocked

District Attorney Again Defends Policy as President Declares for Like Treatment of All Liquor Law Violators.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Parched New Yorkers were much interested today in learning President Coolidge's views on the methods of Emory R. Buckner, Federal District Attorney, in making the city arid. The interest was increased because Buckner's policy threatens a dry football game.

The President let it be known yesterday that he thinks all violations of the prohibition law, no matter how slight, should be prosecuted. Buckner yesterday obtained padlock agreements with 13 more of New York's wet spots, mostly Broadway cabarets. The lights were turned out in the grill and barroom of the Elks Club, a few days ago.

As to President Coolidge's views, Buckner said: "Give me enough judges and I will prosecute every violator in New York."

When yesterday's padlocks were snapped the District Attorney said: "The most dramatic proof of the efficacy of the padlock as against the time-consuming and fining waltz, is to be found in the fact that the proprietors and attorneys of the places which have surrendered were almost tearful in their representation as to the staggering financial losses they would sustain."

Famous Hotel in Baltimore Closed Under Dry Law. BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 21.—The fixtures of Nixon's Hotel, Baltimore's famous old-time hostelry, once patronized by Edwin Booth; "Diamond Jim" Brady and other celebrities, yesterday went under the auctioneer's hammer. Today under a Federal Court order, the familiar doors that swing both ways will be padlocked and Nixon's will pass into memory. Three of the proprietors and a waiter are serving jail terms for violation of the Volstead act.

The ancient mahogany bars went to an unidentified bidder for $120, estimated as less than a tenth of their actual value. Pictures valued at $20,000 were bid in at $5000. Knickknacks which fell under the hammer included two automobile license plates of Maryland, 1917, with an inscription announcing that they had been confiscated by the State from the automobiles of Count von Bernstorff and Baron von Swedencroft, the German and Austrian Ambassadors, at the entry of the United States into the World War.

Two Women and a Man Putting Out Bogus Coins in Small Stores. Two women and a man have passed between 400 and 500 counterfeit silver dollars in small outlying stores in the last several days, despite the fact that policemen on beats have been laboriously warning storekeepers against them.

The dollars are slick to the touch and are light in weight. Most of them are dated 1922 or 1923. One of a dozen storekeepers who turned in samples of the dollars yesterday was Mrs. Minnie Sawyer, who has a candy store at 1356 North Garrison avenue and who described the women. Both are young; both are well dressed. They habitually make 10 or 15-cent purchases and receive change.

COOLIDGE TAKES DRY LEAGUE STAND ON ENFORCEMENT

At Request of Wayne Wheeler He Repudiates Theory Small Violators Are to Be Ignored.

COURTS UNABLE TO HANDLE CASES

New York Furnishes Problem, but Officials Elsewhere Are Inclined to Shift Responsibility.

By DAVID LAWRENCE, A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. (Copyright, 1925.) WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Coolidge has done what the Anti-Saloon League wanted him to do—publicly repudiated the impression given by the statements of United States Attorney Buckner of the Southern District of New York, who indicated that trivial violations of the Volstead law would not be prosecuted.

It's a case in which everybody is in accord, including Buckner, as to what the facts are, but the disagreement arises in trying to discuss prohibition publicly. When Buckner points out, for example, that Federal police courts will be necessary if the man who happens to be caught carrying a flask is to be prosecuted the authorities at the national capital do not disagree that the present court machinery is inadequate and that more important cases are thus blocked or delayed.

Wheeler Goes to White House. Yet as Wayne Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, pointed out to Mr. Coolidge, enforcement is enforcement, and nothing else. Small offenders are just as much violators of the law as big bootleggers. Wheeler argued that Buckner's ideas would be understood as condoning violations, in fact stimulating them. That's why he thought it important enough to carry the matter to the White House.

He told the president that everything that Buckner might say about the crowded conditions of the courts and the failure of New York State to pass an enforcement act similar to those of other states so as to take care of trivial offenses might be true, and yet it would be a tactless thing to tell the public about it.

New York State presents an awkward problem for the Federal authorities anyhow. The Department of Justice wants to do all it can to enforce the law rigidly and yet the Anti-Saloon League wants even more than that done, for the simple reason that the league feels public denunciation of law violation is almost as important as actual prosecution.

What Dry League Wants. If the Anti-Saloon League had its way, the Army and Navy would be used to clean up law violations. The Department of Justice and President Coolidge are not ready to take such a drastic view of the situation, though it is frankly admitted in private that the Federal machinery is not big enough to squelch bootlegging and petty violations too.

MAN KILLED AT INQUEST BY SLAIN MAN'S BROTHER

Vinci Gang Feud Taken Into Coroner's Court at Chicago After Testimony Is Begun.

TWO MEMBERS OF FAMILY MURDERED

Shot Fired When Witness Denies Knowing Victim of Shooting During the Week.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Gangland brought its feud into a Coroner's court today when Sam Vinci, brother of two victims of assassins, shot and killed John Minatti, a witness. Minatti had just testified that he did not know Mike Vinci, who was shot down last Thursday.

Another brother, Jimmy, driver of the automobile in which "Boss" Enright, labor slugger and gunman, was killed, was slain a year or more ago.

The shooting put witnesses and a crowd of the curious to flight. Vinci was seized. The man slain was one of several suspects arrested after the shooting of Mike Vinci. He was accused by Sam Vinci of having "made moonshine" with Mike Vinci.

Theater Withdraws Shakespeare Production Because of Lack of Interest.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The production of "Hamlet" in modern clothes, wherein the hero wears a tuxedo and Ophelia, an ultra-modern dress, has failed to catch the public fancy and will be withdrawn tonight. Announcement that it would close was made yesterday.

HARVARD AND YALE PLAY TWO SCORELESS QUARTERS; 53,000 PERSONS SEE GAME

Contest at Cambridge, in Ideal Football Weather, Rounds Out 50 Years of Competition Between Schols.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 21.—A half century of football rivalry was celebrated in Soldiers' Field today when Harvard and Yale faced each other on the gridiron. Yale went into the game the favorite, although many experts conceded to the Crimson a psychological advantage by virtue of her victory over Brown last week and Yale's crushing defeat at the hands of Princeton.

All the historical color, glamor and drama of this classic of football greeted the 53,000 persons who filled the stadium. Playing conditions were ideal. The field was fast and a bright sun tempered the crisp November air.

First Period. Harvard kicked off to Potts, who ran the ball back to the 42-yard line. After a few short rushes Yale punted to Zarakow who fumbled, and Potts swooped over the ball on the 25-yard line. Short runs made it first down.

Harvard put up a strong defense and Capt. Cheek finally grabbed a Yale pass back of his own goal line. The Crimson put the ball into play on the 20-yard line, but could not gain consistently and punted to Fishwick who fumbled, but recovered the ball on Yale's 42-yard line.

After a punting duel, Fishwick ran from Yale's 29-yard line to the 43-yard mark. Harvard broke up Yale's passing game, and the Blue punted to Harvard's 27-yard line.

SUBMARINE M-1 SANK WHEN IT HIT FREIGHT STEAMER

Announcement Made by British Admiralty After Report by Captain of Swedish Craft.

68 LIVES LOST IN DISASTER

Crew Believed to Have Perished Immediately in Rapid Flooding of Submersible After Crash.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Nov. 21.—Loss of the Monitor Submarine M-1 with 63 lives last week now appears to have been due to a collision with a Swedish steamer, the Admiralty announced today.

Information sent by the Captain of the steamer Vidar, now at Stockholm, that he felt a shock at the time, and in the vicinity of the submarine's disappearance, leads to the conclusion that the M-1 struck the Vidar and sank immediately.

The Admiralty statement was issued after an examination of the Vidar's hull. The Admiralty thinks the collision occurred while the submarine was submerged and adds:

"Under the circumstances it is certain that the M-1 was rapidly and completely flooded and that the crew perished immediately."

The Vidar is a freighter of 2159 tons tonnage.

POSTAL OFFICIAL HELD UP; $75,000 IN STAMPS TAKEN

Robbers Go to His Home, Bind His Family, and Obtain Combination to Safe.

By the Associated Press. SUPERIOR, Wis., Nov. 21.—Robbers today looted the postoffice here of nearly $75,000 in stamps and $125 in money, after binding members of the family of C. J. McGill, assistant postmaster, and forcing him to yield keys and the combination to the vault.

The robbers last night went to the McGill home, bound several members of the family, waited for others to return, secured them, and then forced from McGill the combination of the safe and compelled him to turn over keys to the postoffice.

McGill at first gave a wrong combination, but when asked to repeat the numbers, could not remember the false figures. He was forced at the point of two pistols to tell the true combination.

With one man left in charge of the captives the others went to the postoffice where some delay was experienced, as McGill had made a slip of the tongue in the combination. A watchman, who was bound, told the police that one of the men appeared to be a expert in feeling out the tumblers of the safe. After sweeping the safe clean and wiring the watchman to the door, the robbers fled in an automobile.

The gang overlooked $77,000 in stamps which were in another safe. The stamps were the Christmas allotment of Superior.

FOUR WOUNDED IN SHOOTING ON PASSENGER TRAIN

Man Who Held Revolver Shot During Struggle to Get Weapon From Him.

WINCHESTER, Ky., Nov. 21.—Four men were shot, one wounded seriously, and other passengers in the "smoker" on a Louisville & Nashville passenger train were apparently in a panic when M. G. Loveless of Hazard, Ky., went on shooting rampage on the train at Cressy, Ky., today.

BOY'S FIGHT FOR ABUSED PUPPY WINS A LEGACY

Little Otto Schmitt Stirred the Compassion of Eccentric Lover of Dogs and He Named Him in His Will.

CARE OF ANIMALS ALSO PROVIDED FOR

Special Fund Left to Pay Otto Wages if He Thinks It Necessary to Investigate How Old Joe Is Treated.

A good many years ago some little boys, playing along the banks of the Mississippi River, found sport in teasing a puppy dog into the river to see it struggle back to shore. It was great fun to all except one little boy, who stood watching the dog as long as he could, and then rushed to the dog's aid.

When the fight was over and the bloody noses wiped away, and the dog had fled from its tormentors, a man who had been standing apart looking on called to the champion of the dog and asked him his name.

"Otto," the boy replied. "Otto Schmitt."

"Come with me, Otto. You're a good boy."

And that is how Jacob Siler, lover of dogs and eccentric recluse, established a lifelong friendship with the man he selected as executor of his estate to see that the $2500 he left in trust for the care of his dog, Joe, should be faithfully administered.

As is known, Joe, after the death of his master at the age of 82 last July, is enjoying his endowment to the utmost on the farm of William P. Mertz in the settlement of Athens, St. Louis County.

Mertz, it will be recalled, filled the requirements of an advertisement in the aged bachelor and Civil War veteran ran last January, offering in return for a home for himself and Joe, a two-story brick house and from $3000 to $5000 in property. There were more than 5000 answers.

Makes Otto an Executor. True to his word, Siler made provisions for Mertz in his will, and named him as executor. He also named as executor Otto F. Schmitt, wall paper dealer and interior decorator, of 3255 California avenue—the same Otto Schmitt who rescued the puppy on the Mississippi River bank.

Moreover, he saw to it that Schmitt should share as handsomely as Mertz in the division of the estate. The inventory, filed today at Clayton, discloses that when the estate is finally divided, three years from the date of the testator's death, each will receive about $7500.

The inventory, though in cold figures, reflects the warm eccentricities of the testator. First is listed a note for $100 from William and Ella Ropp, a St. Louis County couple, considered among the 1200 applicants to take care of Joe and his master. Siler failed to qualify when it developed that the couple who had developed the note were tenants, and not owners of their farm.

Then come $2700 in Liberty Bonds of the third and fourth issue. Patriotic Jacob Siler, veteran of six battles in the Civil War, lost an arm at Chickamauga.

Next, cash and savings, $2232.31. Always distrustful of banks, Jacob Siler kept all but $24.16 in a safety deposit box. The other cash was found mostly in $1 bills stuffed in tomato cans and between leaves of books in his home, the two-story, four-room building at 1008 South Seventh street.

Of goods and chattels, the appraisers listed a folding cot, $4.50; a book rack, 50 cents; a clock, $1; contents of a store room filled with miscellaneous papers and boxes, $10; two boxes of old books, $1.50; and, finally, the item: "One dog, no value."

No value—enough to make old Jacob Siler turn over in his grave in the military cemetery at Jefferson Barracks, where he was buried with military honors.

SHARES IN ESTATE FOR FRIENDSHIP FOR DOGS

OTTO SCHMITT

POLICE MUST GIVE UP WIEDEMEIER'S ROLL

Sheriff Shuler Will Have Custody of Fugitive's $16,293.

The police must surrender John V. Wiedemeier's nice fat bankroll, containing exactly $16,293, into the keeping of Sheriff Schuler, Judge Calvin Miller declared today in overruling a motion to set aside his order directing this transfer of the money, which he made three weeks ago.

Chief of Detectives Kaiser had contended that Wiedemeier was merely a fugitive from justice and had been detained on fugitive warrants without charges having been placed against him here. The Circuit Attorney, however, had advised Judge Miller that Wiedemeier came under the court's jurisdiction as he had given bond to appear before the Court to answer any charge that might be placed against him. Judge Miller took this position in the matter and today requested the Circuit Attorney to draw up papers calling on the police to transfer the money.

Numerous attachments have been filed against Wiedemeier's roll by several of the 11 women he is alleged to have swindled or by their relatives. When arrested here with Mrs. Margaretta Hoffman, Wiedemeier represents all he had left after lawyers and professional bondsmen got through with him. Then, he skipped after giving two $5000 bonds and has forfeited both of them, still being among the missing.

FATHER ILL AFTER LEARNING STUDENT DAUGHTER IS BRIDE

Search in Three States Followed Disappearance of Girl From Cape Girardeau School.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Nov. 21.—Returning to his home at Fredericktown at an early hour today after leaving his daughter, Maxine, 17 years old, whose flight from Cape Girardeau Teachers College dormitory Tuesday night caused a search in three states, Dr. C. U. Davis, Fredericktown physician, broke down from strain and is under the care of a doctor at his home.

Married Wednesday forenoon to Harold Combs, a sweetheart whose attentions always had been opposed by Mrs. Davis, Maxine was found at Blytheville, Ark., at the home of her husband's brother, Paul Combs.

News that her daughter had been married was a relief to Mrs. Davis, who said she had been expecting to see her daughter in the city.

Maxine, known as the "Dog Girl Agreement," which was filed with the will, his declining days appear to be pretty well provided for. Mertz must provide the care—and Schmitt must see to it that he does. Of the $2500 set aside for Joe's care Schmitt will receive compensation at the rate of $10 a day for an investigation at any time of Joe's treatment on the Mertz farm, and at the dog's death the residue of the $2500 will be divided between them. And finally, an autopsy must be performed over the dog's body to determine whether he died from natural causes.

Even to the last, Jacob Siler, in choosing his executors, saw to it that Joe would be cared for.

DONNELL TELLS EDITORS HE FAVORS WORLD COURT

Speech at Jefferson City Enlivens Gossip Concerning His Possible Senatorial Candidacy.

WILLIAMS STILL STUDYING QUESTION

Mayor Miller Advises Republicans to Nominate Candidate Who Won't Straddle Any Issue.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 21.—Forrest C. Donnell of St. Louis, who is among those who are considering becoming candidates for the Republican nomination for the United States Senatorship, urged support of the world court in an address here last night before the Republican Editorial Association of Missouri.

This is an issue on which United States Senator George H. Williams, also on the program and the only avowed candidate thus far for the nomination, has not taken a definite stand.

The stage was set for Donnell's unqualified endorsement of the world court by the preceding speech of Mayor Victor Miller of St. Louis.

The Mayor discussed the senatorial race, without mentioning names, and urged nomination of an outstanding, courageous candidate "I hope a man of courage will be nominated, one who will not straddle anything," Miller said.

"The man who is unwilling publicly to state where he stands on an issue either hasn't the brains to state where he stands, or he hasn't the courage."

On the wake of this apparent thrust at Williams' position, Donnell was introduced, and presented his appeal for support of the world court.

Donnell's Friends Busy. Donnell has made no definite announcement concerning his candidacy. Street talk, however, encourages politicians that he will announce given by the fact that his friends insisted he be given a place on the editorial meeting program.

He was left off the original program and telegraph messages from St. Louis at the last minute resulted in his addition to the program.

"I am seriously considering entering the race," Donnell told the correspondent, "but have not reached a definite decision. I have received much encouragement. There will be no announcement for several days."

In his address, Donnell urged unqualified support of the World Court. "We, as citizens, owe our support to President Coolidge," he said. "The United States must, if it is to hold its moral pre-eminence among the nations, become a member of the World Court. We, as Americans, have uniformly stood for the maintenance of law and order to settle international controversies. This is no time to change our policy."

Recalls Party Declaration. He recalled that both Democratic and Republican parties in their platforms, had approved the World Court, and said that editorial utterances of a great majority of the press of the country favored adherence to the court.

"The danger exists of our being involved in obligations to the League of Nations," Donnell declared. "The conditions proposed by President Harding and Secretary Hughes expressly provide that adherence to the court shall not be taken to involve any legal relation to the League of Nations or the assumption of any obligation by the United States under the covenant of the league."

Senator Williams, who followed Donnell, said he had been studying the World Court plan since last May, when he was appointed by Gov. Baker. "I hope that time will permit me to conclude this study, and will permit me to approach the question with an open mind," Senator Williams said. "I hope that I may express the best judgment of the people of Missouri on that great venture."

Advice to Office Seekers. Williams confined the rest of his address to Republican principles and practical politics, with emphasis on the latter.

Swallowed Parasites That He Might Study Disease

Medical Missionary in China Used This Method to Bring Intestinal Pest to American Laboratory for Study.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 21.—Dr. C. H. Barlow, a medical missionary in China, risked his life for humanity's sake by swallowing 32 deadly parasites as he was about to sail from China as he was about to get them to the Johns Hopkins laboratory here.

The story is told in an article published under the caption, "Life Cycle of the Human Intestinal Fluke," in the American Journal of Hygiene of the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health.

It details the results of 14 years of Dr. Barlow's life devoted to the eradication of "fasciolopsiasis," a disease prevalent in China, which has claimed millions of victims, especially in the densely populated Shanghai district.

The parasites, or flukes, responsible for the disease are flat creatures, sometimes more than an inch in size and of a bright red color. After carrying his researches in China as far as his meager laboratory equipment would permit, Dr. Barlow decided to push them further by coming to Johns Hopkins. The problem of getting living parasites from China to Baltimore was difficult, but Dr. Barlow solved it. Taking 32 live flukes from the body of a patient, he washed them in distilled water and drank them. He then boarded the steamer for America. He told no one what he had done until he arrived at Hopkins.

Since 1911 Dr. Barlow had been fighting the disease in the Shanghai district, which covers an area of about 1600 square miles, populated by more than a million people. He has been successful in eradicating the disease in several villages every resident was suffering from the disease.

In 1922 Dr. Barlow deliberately infected himself with the disease by swallowing 132 cysts containing the parasites in an undeveloped state. Four months of illness followed. During this time Dr. Barlow recorded each stage and symptom. Dr. Barlow now is at Ningbo, China, where he is trying to interest the Chinese in the control measures necessary to stamp out the disease.

INTERNAL REVENUE JOB HERE LIKELY TO GO TO L. J. BECKER

Sensor Williams Expected to Approve Chairman of Republican City Committee for Post.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 21.—Although no definite agreement has been reached by Senator Williams, National Committeeman from Missouri, and Chairman Phares of the Republican State Committee regarding the recommendation to be made for the appointment of a Collector of Internal Revenue for the Eastern District of Missouri, it is generally believed here that Williams will approve Louis J. Becker, chairman of the Republican City Committee of St. Louis, for the job.

Becker is the most active candidate for the appointment to fill the unexpired term of Arnold J. Hellmich, who resigned following his indictment in connection with the alleged Jack Daniel whisky conspiracy.

It was expected Williams, Clements and Phares would get together while here to attend the Republican editorial gathering and that the appointment would be settled, but no formal conference was held, although undoubtedly the matter was discussed informally.

Statements favoring Dr. Ed S. Brown of Edina, but his action is looked upon as more or less routine; the National Committeeman usually having a candidate from the First Congressional District, in which he resides, for nearly every Federal job that is open.

Williams is a candidate for the nomination for re-election next year and is not overlooking any opportunity to gain favor with the Republican City Committee. The committee has endorsed Becker and, particularly in view of the fact that there is no personal fight on Becker, there is every reason to believe that his name will be the one to go to the President with the Senator's approval.

Williams said here today that he would depart from St. Louis Tuesday for Washington and that he would not reach a decision regarding the appointment until he reached Washington.

MRS. OSBORNE WOOD OBTAINS DIVORCE

Decree Granted in 20 Minutes on Statutory Grounds.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 21.—Only 20 minutes were required yesterday for Mrs. Katherine Thompson Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Thompson of Wilmington, to obtain a divorce decree nisi on statutory grounds from former Lieut. Osborne C. Wood, son of Governor-General Wood of the Philippine Islands. The case was uncontested in Superior Court.

A stipulation regarding the future custody of the two children of the couple will be presented later to the Court by counsel for both parties.

Testimony supporting the charges of Mrs. Wood was offered by two negro bellboys of Tampa, Fla., and a private detective, Samuel Ross of Philadelphia. All testified that in March of this year Wood stayed at a Tampa hotel with a Miss Eslington, also known as Mrs. Eslington. Although ignorant of the woman's first name, Ross testified that Miss Eslington admitted to him that she was a "sporting woman" and a widow with a home in Atlanta. Ross went to Tampa to investigate the case for Mrs. Wood on April 4, he said.

Mrs. Wood testified that she was married on April 2, 1912, lived two years with her husband in the Philippines and traveled to Europe through Asia with him. She left him in Paris in June, 1914, and returned to her parents' home here. Her father testified that since that time he has supported his daughter and the children. Wood was represented by counsel.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—A revised application for a charter for the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, the original application of which was disapproved Oct. 21, has been approved by Supreme Court Justice Ford.

The new application was couched in language offering widely from the original which stated as one of the purposes of the organization a campaign to abolish belief in God. The revised document declares that the object is to advance atheism, to hold public hearings and to erect radio stations for the broadcasting of lectures, debate and discussion on the subject of science and religion. The organization also proposes to "publish and distribute scientific and anti-religious literature, but not for profit."

The incorporators are: Charles Smith, New York City, president; Woolsey Teller, Chicago, vice president; and Freeman Hopwood, New York City, secretary and treasurer.

Actress Declares She Loves Fourth Husband "As Much as Any Woman Does After 2 Years."

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Nov. 21.—Court records show that Peggy Joyce introduced a demand for a divorce from her fourth husband, Count Morner, some two weeks ago.

Following the usual procedure, the magistrate sent both parties summons to appear before him in "reconciliation proceedings." Count Morner failing to appear, the Court registered a document establishing "non-reconciliation."

"Precedents all show that a divorce decree follows the registration of such a document automatically within 60 days."

Upon her arrival in New York on the Mauretania yesterday, Miss Joyce denied she had any intention of divorcing Count Morner. The actress remarked she was as much attached to her husband as the tributes placed a wreath inscribed "To Our Valiant Son."

He was taken to a hospital, raving. The faster was on the twelfth day of his scheduled 30 feedless and sleepless days, and had been an attraction in a busy Paris thoroughfare, where his cage was installed in a large hall.

FASTER SEES FOOD, GOES CRAZY

Girl With Seizure Proves Too Much for Man 12 Days in Cage.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Nov. 21.—The sight of a young woman eating a chocolate éclair with great relish outside his glass cage caused Albert Wolff, a professional faster, to go violently insane. After gazing fixedly at the fast-disappearing dainty in the girl's fingers, Wolff suddenly rose, seized his chair and smashed the glass in an effort to reach the food.

He was taken to a hospital, raving. The faster was on the twelfth day of his scheduled 30 feedless and sleepless days, and had been an attraction in a busy Paris thoroughfare, where his cage was installed in a large hall.

Roosevelt's Daughter on Crime Commission

THE HAGUE, Nov. 21.—The Permanent Court of International Justice delivered its findings regarding the dispute between Great Britain and Turkey over the Mosul area of Mesopotamia.

The court declares the dispute to be taken by the council of the League of Nations shall be taken upon the parties concerned shall constitute definite determination of the frontier between Turkey and the British mandate State of Iraq (Mesopotamia), of which Mosul is a part.

The League council's decision must be by unanimous vote. The representatives of the parties to the dispute are to participate in the voting, but their vote will not be counted in ascertaining whether there is unanimity.

The questions which the council was asked to decide have no bearing on the fixing of the boundary, but only on the powers of the League Council.

GENEVA, Nov. 21.—It is understood that the council is determined to limit the Mosul boundary in December unless both the British and the Turks ask a delay. The New York World and Tribune match correspondents learned since Twelfth Bay's original statement to enter negotiations with Secretary Amery at Geneva in the summer, when he was rebuffed, Amery has been seeking various ways to start independent negotiations.

The Colonial office has requested the British and the Turks to reach an agreement independent of the League. On the other hand, it is believed that if a compromise can be reached, the League will not be promulgated through the League.

20 DRIVERS FOR STORE HELD UP; $1776 STOLEN

Eight Masked Men Rob Six-Baer-Fuller Relay Station as Collections Are Turned In.

WOMAN FAINTS DURING EXCITEMENT

Robbers Threaten to Kill Anyone Making Outcry—Fourth Robbery in Vicinity in Three Years.

A checkup today showed $1776.16 was obtained by the band of armed and masked men, estimated at eight in number, that descended upon the relay depot of Six, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., 3720 Lucille avenue, at 6:45 p. m. yesterday.

A score of truck drivers were around the office turning in C. O. D. receipts when the robbers suddenly appeared and held them up. The drivers were marched to one side of the office and forced to kneel on the floor, with their hands elevated. Six girls clerks were kept under cover in another part of the office.

One robber entered the cashier's cage in which Mrs. Hilda Sleskman, 27 years old, of 4714 Ashland court, was placing cash envelopes in a safe. He pushed a revolver against her back and asked "Where's the money?" She pointed to the open safe and he scooped the envelopes into his pockets and a bag brought along for that purpose. During the excitement Mrs. Sleskman fainted.

The robbers swore profusely and threatened to kill anyone who made an outcry. Clarence Colby, depot foreman, was across the street eating supper, and the robbers, fearing he had gone to telephone, repeatedly demanded, "Where's the boss?"

One of the robbers guarded Gus Mossman, 221 Academy avenue, the night watchman, and with an accompaniment of oaths, declared, "For two pins I'd blow your head off." Mossman remonstrated, and was warned the robber's revolver "might accidentally go off" if he did not keep still.

"I go," "Let's get out," shouted the robber in the cashier's cage, as he finished looting the safe. He and his companions escaped in an automobile. At least three of the robbers are believed to be notorious police characters.

This was the fourth robbery in the area around the relay depot in three years. On Dec. 22, 1922, five men held up a company truck a half block from the depot and obtained $402. On April 23, 1923, robbers obtained $2514 by looting the safe in the office. On Feb. 8, 1924, under circumstances similar to last night's holdup, three armed and masked men obtained $2274.

STING IN BASEMENT OF SALOON OPENS DOOR TO BEER

Police, Acting on Information Given by Woman, Find Liquor in Cellar Next Door.

Information furnished by a woman led Capt. Kirk and his men to the saloon of Henry D. Burton, 1804 Mississippi avenue, yesterday. They had been told liquor was being sold there.

A search of the saloon failed to disclose any illicit liquor. In the basement Capt. Kirk found a string suspended from a wall. He pulled the string and a trap door fell down, revealing a cellar. In the basement at 1802 Mississippi, as basement he reported finding 48 bottles of alleged "home-made" beer in a tub; eight cases of same not ticed; nine cases of empty bottles; a three-gallon jug of wine; sugar; and 15-gallon crocks, bottle caps and corks. Burton said he had no jurisdiction over that particular basement and knew nothing of the beer. He was arrested.

LIQUOR TRUCK HELD AT BRIDGE
Driver for Produce Company Had 202 Gallons.

A large truck and 202 gallons of alcohol were seized today by detectives stationed at the west end of Eads bridge. The driver of the truck, who said he was Samuel Parent, 22, of 1416 North Fifteenth street, was arrested.

The truck is the property of a commission company on North Third street. Parent said he delivered a load of produce in East St. Louis early today, got the alcohol there and was bringing it to St. Louis for a man who was to meet him near the bridge. He said the employer did not know he was hauling the alcohol.

Filling Station Robbed of $6.
Two men in a Chevrolet coupe drove into an oil station at 952 Bismarck avenue, 2:15 a. m. today and ordered five gallons of gasoline. When it came to paying for it, they held up Edward Boyer, the attendant, and escaped with $6. The coupe is believed to be the one of Emma Stueg, 10 North Kingshighway, stolen last night from a parking place at Thurst Avenue and Morgan street.

Alexandra's Coronation Photograph

Private Funeral Services Held for Queen Alexandra

canceled, all the more so as Dec. 1 coincides with the anniversary of Alexandra's birth.

The newspapers today came out in deep mourning for the Danish Princess, who arrived in England in 1863 to become the bride of the Prince of Wales.

An indication of the popular affection existing for Alexandra is the fact the laboring organs, the Herald, which usually ignores royal happenings or prints an inch concerning them when other newspapers print a column, devotes two columns to the death of Queen Mother Alexandra and also a cordial editorial headed: "A Woman With a King Heart."

Most of last night's radio programs were changed, omitting the lighter features and substituting in some cases funeral orations.

Ancient Funeral Precedent.
The Lord Chamberlain's department is responsible in the funeral arrangements.

There is no modern precedent for the funeral of a mother of a reigning British monarch. For an exact parallel the Lord Chamberlain will have to go back to the death of Catherine of France, mother of Henry VI, in 1448.

It is expected, however, that the ceremonial observed at the funeral of Queen Victoria, her niece, was on the throne, will be followed, namely, that the body will be brought to London, with lying in state and a funeral procession. The body will then be taken to Windsor, and placed in the royal vault. This has been the burial place of the royal family for 150 years, the only exception being Queen Victoria, who rests beside the Prince Consort, in Frogmore mausoleum.

Postponement of the Guild Hall luncheon yesterday in honor of the Prince of Wales came suddenly when it was learned that Alexandra was at the verge of death and that Wales was desirous of being at the bedside. Hundreds of guests had been invited to the Guild Hall, unaware of the postponement, as there was no time to make it known to all those invited. Thousands of persons had already gathered along the route of the procession, and the word was passed, "the pageant was not to be held, they dispersed."

Younger Sister of Alexandra, Former Queen, Lives in Denmark.
By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 21.—The news of the death of Queen Mother Alexandra was received in Denmark, her native land, with deep sorrow and with the feeling that a powerful link in the chain of friendship between Denmark and England has been snapped. The court today went into mourning for three weeks.

The news came as an especial shock to Alexandra's younger sister, Marie, the former Empress of Russia, now living in Denmark. At lunch yesterday the former Queen, who is at present in good health, recalled memories of the childhood and youth which she and Alexandra spent together in Denmark, telling her daughter, the Grand Duchess Olga, and her retainers how they lived with their parents, who later became King Christian IX and Queen Louise of Denmark, at the modest yellow palace now occupied by Prince and Princess Viggo.

The former Carina related how she and her sister had to make their own dresses, their father's allowance being exceedingly small due to the economical disposition of the King Frederick VII. After lunch Marie sat at her piano and played the overture "Elleværst," remarking that Alexandra liked that tune better than any other. The former Carina took her customary afternoon taxi-ride through the forest adjoins the Villa Hvide, which for years has been the joint summer residence of herself and Queen Alexandra. Soon after her return the news of her sister's death was received.

Danish artists will mourn a true friend in Queen Alexandra. She always went out of her way to be helpful to them, and many of their successes in painting and music were due to her interest and the introduction she gave them.

Those who assisted her in charity work as they often had to use much diplomacy to keep her benevolence within the limits of her budget. One of these assistants once predicted to the correspondent that Queen Alexandra would die comparatively poor, because she gave everything away.

Message of Condolence From President Coolidge.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Coolidge yesterday cabled King George of England an expression of sympathy for himself and Mrs. Coolidge over the death of Queen Mother Alexandra. It read: "The royal intelligence of the death of Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, your mother, has impressed Mrs. Coolidge and me with profound sorrow. We desire to extend to Your Majesty our sincere condolences and heartfelt sympathy."

Queen Alexandra Wore American Device to Enable Her to Hear.
By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—An American invention enabled Queen Alexandra to hear during the last 23 years.

The death of the Queen Mother in London has enabled a secret long kept to be disclosed.

Miller Reese Hutchinson, once associated with Thomas A. Edison, invented an electrical device to enable the deaf to hear. Queen Alexandra heard about it and instructed Consuelo, dowager Duchess of Manchester, to investigate a demonstration in this country. On returning to London she cabled to the inventor asking him to come to London to demonstrate his device to a "prominent person."

Queen Alexandra, Hutchinson declared, was enabled to hear opera for the first time in years. She wore the device concealed. Shortly afterward she personally presented him with a gold medal.

The telegram stated that Hale was arrested after he and two other men passed a worthless check for $800 drawn on the Boatmen's Bank here. Hale's companions escaped.

ST. CHARLES SHERIFF CITED FOR CONTEMPT

Action Result of Freeing Federal Prisoner Later Killed in Accident.

Sheriff Grothe of St. Charles County today was cited by Federal Judge Davis to show cause, Nov. 30, why he should not be punished for contempt of court in the premature release of the late Michael Woods, a saloonkeeper, from the St. Charles jail, where he was a Federal prisoner.

Woods was fatally injured in a fall at his home, 3880A Easton avenue, on Nov. 1. He had been committed to the St. Charles jail on Oct. 7 under a 60-day sentence for violation of the Volstead act, and had served only 26 days when released.

It was in Woods' home, that Patrolman Bernard Early was murdered less than a year ago.

The Judge's citation order was made at the request of District Attorney Curry, who has inquired into the circumstances of the release of Woods to the St. Charles jail, where he was a Federal prisoner.

The Department of Justice inquiry is being conducted, also. The District Attorney stated today that the situation should have the result at least of stopping the practice of sending Federal prisoners to St. Charles County.

At the United States Marshal's office today that a card had been received there about Nov. 3 from Sheriff Grothe, on which it was stated that Woods had been released from the jail at 7:30 p. m. Nov. 1, "because sent to Baptist Hospital, St. Louis." Sheriff Grothe told the Post-Dispatch yesterday that he himself had accompanied Woods to his home to allow Woods to make arrangements for effecting release from jail.

Chose to Go to Jail.
The Sheriff explained that Woods got the alternative of paying a fine of $1000 or serving six months in jail when he pleaded guilty before United States District Judge Davis. Woods elected to serve the sentence.

Woods' commitment papers set forth that he was to serve a sentence of 60 days. There was no reference in them to the fine offered as an alternative by the Court and Sheriff Grothe therefore had no official knowledge that Woods had a choice in the matter of punishment.

"He was ill when he came to the jail," Sheriff Grothe said. "So much so that toward the end of October I had him moved to my house where he could have quarters better suited for a sick man. Finally, on Nov. 1 he told me he thought he would be able to raise money to pay off the fine if he would arrange matters with his wife. I consented to take him to his home."

Tells of the Accident.
"We got there that evening. After a conference with Mrs. Woods my prisoner asked to be allowed to go downstairs to the saloon to see what cash was available there. A moment later we heard a noise and went to see what was going on. We found him lying on the floor. A doctor was called and pronounced him too ill to travel. I left him there that night. Next morning he was removed to the Baptist Hospital where he died on Nov. 16."

In the fall Woods suffered fractures of five ribs. His left lung was punctured and he died of traumatic pneumonia. He was 48 years old.

DISMISSAL DENIED IN MRS. THAW'S $600,000 SUIT
She Is Seeking to Recover Gift to Grandson on Grounds of Misrepresentation.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Federal Judge Thacher today denied the motion of Lawrence Copley Thaw to throw out of court the complaint of his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, in her suit to recover $600,000 which she gave him early this year.

Mrs. Thaw is the mother of Harry K. Thaw.

Mrs. Thaw, who is 83 years old, charged in her suit that her grandson, by statements that were made to her, had induced her to believe he had been unjustly discriminated against in the will of his father, thereby leading her to give him the $600,000.

Judge Thacher held that the allegations in Mrs. Thaw's complaint were sufficient to set a court of equity in motion, in order that all the facts may be adjudicated. She said in her complaint that she was infirm of body and mind at the time she was persuaded to give the grand sum of money. The amount of the gift and taxes on it and the sale of certain of her securities would exceed the entire net income from her estate for a year, she said.

MANY OUT OF WORK IN MEXICO

The report from which these figures were obtained is said to cover only a portion of the country.

The confederation is endeavoring to have a six-hour working day with pay for eight hours established. It maintains that a six-hour day would necessitate the employment by the various industries of more men, which would give jobs to many more persons now without work.

CLARA MORRIS, ONCE FAMOUS ACTRESS, DIES

For Thirty Years She Had Been Ill, and Sometimes Blind.

By the Associated Press.
NEW CANAAN, Conn., Nov. 21.—Clara Morris, originally Morrison, once acclaimed as the greatest emotional actress of the English-speaking stage and later as the "woman of sorrow" because of her illnesses and financial reverses, died of heart disease yesterday at the age of 79.

Sarah Bernhardt, witnessing a Clara Morris performance in the heyday of her career, exclaimed, "That woman is not acting. She's suffering."

Mrs. Morris said of herself a few days before her death, "I am the only famous actress who had only one husband and never knew any family troubles."

Mrs. Morris' husband, Frederick C. Harriott, died in 1914, and, as far as is known here, she is not survived by any relatives. She died at the home of C. M. Herold. She had been living with the Herolds since closing her home two months ago.

She reached the apex of her career in 1875. Twenty years later she was forced to retire from the stage. In 1898 she and her husband faced eviction from their luxurious home, which was saved by the generosity of her brother-in-law. For nearly 30 years she had suffered from rheumatism, sciatica, and almost complete blindness.

For 20 years she had been confined to her room.

During her active career Clara Morris became prominent in emotional roles and appeared as a star in the principal theaters of America. Among the parts in which she won fame were "Camille," "The New Magdalene," and "Cora" in "L'Article 47." She was the author of half a dozen books, autobiographical and about the theater.

ALL-NIGHT SESSION OF FRENCH PARLIAMENT OVER DEBTS
Proposal for Lottery and for Capital Levy Voted.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Nov. 21.—The Chamber of Deputies sat from 10 o'clock last night until 7:30 o'clock today dealing with the program Premier Painleve has formulated to rehabilitate the financial status of France.

The net result achieved was the voting of Article 1 of Painleve's plan. This deals with the creation of a national amortization fund of the public debt. So many amendments and counter proposals were advanced that it was 7:15 a. m. before a counter proposal was finally passed.

Blum, Socialist, demanded a pledge from the Government there should be no more inflation, but forced consolidation of the national defense bonds and not an emphatic refusal. The bill of the Premier provides for their consolidation, but unless it is passed by Dec. 8, there will be absolutely no alternative but to print more notes to meet the 2,500,000,000 franc short term bonds.

The debate was opened for considering the plan of the communist Deputy, Garchery, to restore the country's finances by nationalizing everything. This was rejected by a vote of 499 to 58. Next Bonnefoy's plan for the creation of a national lottery was taken up, but this, together with another project, sponsored by Edmond Boyer and the original Socialist capital levy plan, revised and put forward by the Communists, was disposed of adversely as quickly as possible.

RESCUED FISHERMAN SAFELY LANDED AFTER PERILOUS TRIP
Five Men Were Adrift Five Days Without Food or Water in Gulf of Mexico.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 21.—Hattless, suffering from exposure, without funds and recovering from five days without food or water, Alfred Luker, Robert Anderson and Michael York, who started from Perth Amboy, N. J., Saturday in a 30-foot motorboat, were landed here yesterday by the American steamer Isaac T. Mann.

The men were prepared when they set out only for a brief fishing expedition but were caught in a northwest gale. While in New York bay their engine broke down and they were carried 75 miles to sea, with waves breaking over the boat. The men were obliged to stand in water almost up to their knees for two days, despite that they took turns in bailing out the craft. Several steamer passed near them but no assistance was offered until Thursday, when the Isaac T. Mann from a distance of

MISSOURI ELEVEN 2-TO-1 FAVORITE TO WIN FROM KANSAS JAYHAWKERS

—By Ken Kling

Supporters Wager Even Money That Tigers Will Defeat Foe 14 Points

Jayhawkers, However, Will Have Their Strongest Combination of the Season in the Field, With Two Star Tackles in the Lineup.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 21.—Missouri scored a touchdown in the first quarter.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 21.—Since early Friday afternoon the gold and black of Missouri and the crimson and blue of Kansas have mingled in the streets of Lawrence as rooters for the Tiger and Jayhawk have poured in by the hundred to witness the thirty-ninth annual struggle between the two on Memorial Stadium grounds here this afternoon.

Advance sale of tickets had reached 24,000 late Friday night and with the weather holding good till game time there is every prospect of a crowd of more than 25,000 seeing the game.

The Tiger, fat with five Missouri conference victories, is going into the fray a 2-to-1 favorite.

Bets have been made at 3 to 1 and Missourians are risking even money that the Tigers will win by 14 points. Such bets are running ready takers.

The Tigers were due to arrive in Kansas City about noon today after spending the night there. The Jayhawkers have been at a hotel in on the edge of town since Thursday night and will come into Lawrence just in time to suit up for the game, which starts at 2 o'clock.

Jayhawk Team the Heavier.

Lineups announced for the game by the two coaches show that Kansas carries the weight advantage in the line by averaging 185 pounds to Missouri's average of 177½. In the backfield Kansas will average 175 and Missouri 163.

Each eleven will have four men playing their third year. Kansas will have six two-year men and one first-year man, while Missouri will have five two-year men and three one-year men. This puts the two teams practically on an even keel as to experience.

Harold Zuber, 210-pound junior, will start at left half for Kansas and will be in the starting lineup in the first time this season. Zuber broke a collar bone before the opening game and not until last week in the Grinnell game did he play. His presence gives Kansas a consistent 60-yard punter, an accurate forward passer and a line plunger.

Kansas has been weak in punting since the death of Zuber. The presence of Zuber is a decided addition in offensive strength. It is expected that he will easily hold his own in the line.

Sooner forward wall.

With a dry field and clear weather in prospect for the game, Sooner fans are expecting to see the Oklahoma air attack going at full blast before the game is over. All games played here this year have been held in the mud and the passing power of Potts and Hill has been of no avail. Potts, who is known to be the mightiest runner of his type have proved disastrous to Sooner hopes this season.

With the Sooners an uncertain quantity, the Pikers are expected to seek the vulnerable spots early in the game.

Eddie Huffman Gives De Mave Savage Beating

Water Looks Like a Real Promising Heavyweight, Hype Igoo Writes.

By Hype Igoo.

At the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Eddie Huffman was and is a sensation. He punched Jack De Mave into a vision wreck at the Pioneer Sporting Club last night in 12 rounds. He whipped De Mave with the first punch of the fight, it would seem, for with that punch, a straight left on the nose, he floored De Mave, forcing the Hollander to a count of nine.

It was a punch that Jack never forgot. It didn't break his heart. He didn't believe I ever saw a game man for 12 rounds, after he got up. He was down again for nine in the fifth round. To add to Jack's woes, he received a deep cut on his upper lip in the second round, and then on he was a sight.

Huffman, an artist with his left, kept hooking and jabbing that cut until it made one think of Carl Harris and his unhappy session with Jim Flynn at Madison Square Garden.

Huffman was relentless. He fairly painted De Mave with that left hand of his, the busiest, most cruel man in years.

Sure to Be Heard From.

Fighting only two years, this big fellow is bound to be a sensation as he is along and gathers experience. He has a peculiar swaying, swaying style, but always he carries himself. There is no getting away from him. De Mave could not get out of his track no matter how he tried.

De Mave popped the California team with the best that he had, but Huffman kept coming. Huffman landed his ankle in one of the rounds; he claimed after the fight that was his reason for slowing noticeably in the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds. The leg hurt him horribly, he said.

In the second round De Mave was hit and on the verge of a knock-out. Trying to keep the shifting Huffman in front of him.

De Mave was rocking on the back many times, but just when he was about to go he would rally, drive him back.

De Mave weighed 183 pounds and Huffman 174.

George Courtney made a favorable impression when he stopped Roberts in three rounds.

Practicing Football Before Opening of School Term Barred

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 21.—Practicing or playing football before the opening of the fall terms by high school athletes was made illegal at a meeting here yesterday of the Illinois High School Athletic Association by the passing of changes in the organization's by-laws.

Competition in three or more sports was made allowable only if the schools entering the meet are members in good standing of the association or of some association of equally high standards.

Junior high school boys whose scholastic standing is below the fifth grade were declared ineligible for competition in interscholastic events between members of the association.

GIRL GRIDDERS PLAY THE FOOTBALL GAME

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 21.—Two girls' football teams played to a 6-6 tie here yesterday. Each team made a touchdown, but on the try point by place kick neither eleven was able to get the ball off the ground.

The teams were drawn from the gymnasium classes of San Jose State Teachers' College. Regulation football rules applied, although off-side and holding were penalized.

One side scored on a forward pass that was carried over the goal line. The other team snatched the ball from the back of the opposing team and one of its players grabbed the ball on the pass back from center, turned around and ran for a touchdown. The play was allowed by the referee.

Golf Conference To Fix Standard Weight for Ball

International Meeting Likely to Be Held in England Next June.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Agreement between American and English golf officials on the size and weight of a new standard ball may finally be reached at an international conference next June in England, plans for which are now receiving consideration.

William C. Fownes Jr., of Pittsburgh, chairman of the committee on implements and the ball, as well as nominee for the 1926 presidency of the United States Golf Association, expected by officials here to convey American ideas to the Royal and Ancient Club, Britain's ruling body. He has been active in attempting to solve the problem of a new ball for American courses, but thus far England has been unable to accept the recommendation of the Fownes committee for a bigger lighter sphere, owing to peculiar atmospheric conditions on courses abroad.

An attempt to fix the date of the conference for the period of the Walker Cup matches between American and English amateur players grows out of a plan to name Fownes captain of the United States team. Emphasis is laid upon the fact that the Pittsburgh man would thus be able to fill an important dual role for the U. S. G. A.

In its report to the last annual meeting of the association, the Fownes committee on implements and the ball recommended that final decision on the adoption of a new standard ball be postponed until Jan. 1, 1926.

England Not Convinced.

In view of the fact that England has not yet been won over to the new ball recommended by the Fownes committee, and that the international kinks in the next summer, observers here considered it highly probable that the annual meeting in Chicago on Jan. 8 would again defer action.

Experts claim that many golf courses are fast becoming "bunkies" with the present ball, which is 1.52 inches in diameter and 1.62 ounces in weight. Increased hitting power not only has conquered distance and hazard, but has rendered almost useless the once-popular brassie, used frequently heretofore for "second shots" on long holes.

The Fownes committee, after extended investigation, decided upon a ball 1.68 inches in diameter and 1.58 ounces in weight. Such a ball it was stated, would curtail long hitting and would be easier to find in the rough, but would bring a increased demand for control on all shots.

STANFORD CONCEDED AN EVEN CHANCE TO BEAT THE CALIFORNIA BEARS

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Today's annual gridiron classic of the Far West—the "big game"—brings together California and Stanford in their thirty-second football engagement. And for the first time in at least six years, the Cardinals of Stanford are conceded to have an even chance of winning.

Although both elevens were beaten by Washington, approximately 75,000 persons are expected to fill Stanford Stadium for the game.

In another game claiming widespread interest, the University of Southern California meets Iowa, and is bent on maintaining its record of no defeats and no ties in intersectional games.

Other conference engagements will pit Idaho against the Oregon Aggies at Boise and the conference leading Washington eleven against Puget Sound at Tacoma. Gonzaga and Washington State College will play at Spokane.

STECHER DANCE MORE THROWS DAN KOLOFF

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 21.—Joe Stecher scissored his way to another mat victory over Dan Koloff in straight falls here last night. The first fall was won in 25 minutes and the second in 17.

Koloff was substituted for Joe Zickman, Chicago, who failed to arrive for the match. Before wrestling Stecher, Koloff tossed Farmer McLeon in the preliminary.

Promoters Balk At Charity 'Cut'

Fighters and Beneficiaries Wanted 50 Per Cent Each Leaving Nil for Rickard.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Mickey Walker and Tommy Milligan will not meet in New Madison Square Garden for the benefit of the New York American's Christmas fund. That much was settled at the meeting of the fight fathers, yesterday.

When the managers of the show, Messrs. Hall, Slocum and Jess McMahon for Tex Rickard informed the commission that they couldn't make the show pay for itself if the city's needy got 50 per cent of the gate receipts, the commission went right up in the air as a unit.

Quite rightly, they told the committee that they would adhere to their edict that half of all charity show gate receipts must go to that charity.

Walker demanded his champion's pittance of 37½ per cent. Milligan wanted his 12½ per cent, the lawful claim of a challenger. That ate up the remaining 50 per cent as the fathers could readily see. So there was nothing to do but throw the whole proposition into the waste basket, all because greedy fighters can't see the light of charity.

Walker and Sailor Freedman meet next Wednesday.

75,000 to Watch Trojans Battle Hawkeyes Today

Kutch, Fry and Romey Limping as Teams Prepared to Enter Contest.

By Copeland C. Burg.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 21.—Staging a modern Bunker Hill, where cousin smacked cousin, Iowa and the University of Southern California met here today in the first Pacific Coast intersectional football clash of the season.

More than half of the 75,000 fans who jammed the coliseum to watch the battle were former residents of the Hawkeye State and many of the California players traced their ancestry to the Middle Western plains, where the corn grows so high.

Nick Kutch, the widely advertised "cowboy" leader of the invading Iowans as well as Wesley Fry, staid fullback, and Romey, rated one of the West's best ends, were limping slightly as the black and gold squad prepared to take the field and all of the visitors appeared somewhat the worse for their 500-mile jaunt to the broad Pacific.

A staff correspondent of the Sunday Post-Dispatch has been in Florida—what he saw and learned is told and pictured in the Post-Dispatch Magazine next Sunday.

Out of the maze of stories from the "Gold Coast," Post-Dispatch readers will get Facts—some almost marvelous—some that are discouraging.

What will happen? Can prices continue to soar? Can the land produce an income that will justify its price? Without factories or much agriculture, can Florida support its contemplated population? Are the financial interests too large to be entirely vanquished? Can conditions become stabilized when a four-room apartment rents for $250 to $600 a month? How can mechanics at $20 a day exist, when the bare necessities of life cost $500 per month?

MISSIONARY SEES SILVER LINING OF CLOUDS IN CHINA

"Anti" Philosophies of Orientals Really Are Negative in Name but Positive in Virtue.

"Anti" movements, which serve as expressions of the nationalistic spirit of China today, were described by Bishop Logan Herbert Roots of Hankow, China, in an address delivered last night in Christ Church Cathedral. He declared that anti-imperialism, anti-capitalism, anti-foreignism and anti-religion were watchwords of the Chinese nationalistic movement.

"Echoing and re-echoing in the speech and writing of the young patriots of China," he said, "are the watchwords which indicate how closely they are in touch with the youth of other lands, and how deeply they are moved, in thought at least, by the tides of thought which are sweeping over the rest of the world. They breathe the criticism and hostility which characterize the attitude of present-day youth generally towards established institutions. But while they appear outwardly to indicate a negative and destructive purpose, I believe their deepest meaning is both positive and constructive.

Ideals of Democracy.
"Anti-imperialism is manifestly but the negative side of devotion to democracy. The ideals of democracy have taken strong hold on the imagination of young China, and although they are still far from realization in practice, the imperialistic theory which held sway without serious question for more than two thousand years appears to have been turned down quite finally in the revolution of 1911.

"Anti-capitalism again is but the negative aspect of a new-found consideration for the poor. This cry is doubtless re-enforced by negative patriotism, because the chief aggregations of capital in China are in the hands of foreigners; but a new era has manifestly dawned when the leaders of the nation begin to consider the poor.

"Anti-foreignism is the negative aspect of patriotism, and without the positive and constructive force of the passion, the present anti-foreignism would be essentially the same as that which, in its mild and self-complacent aspects, was exhibited by the Emperor Chien-lung in the mandates he transmitted through Lord McCartney, about 1793, to George III of England.

Demand a Reality.
"Anti-religion and the anti-Christian movement seem to me negative aspects of the deepest and most constructive of human impulses—the demand of reality in religion. Even in their negative aspects, these movements are encouraging when we contrast them with the proud indifference which for the last hundred years has been the most unyielding obstacle that true religion has had to meet in China.

"I feel sure that the Anti-Christian movement should be encouraging rather than discouraging to Christian people, for, first, it shows that Christianity has grown to proportions which can no longer be ignored, and secondly, it secures attention and study on which Christianity thrives, in place of former indifference and self-sufficiency, which are the most difficult of all obstacles to overcome. It means also that Christianity is being judged by the standard it has itself taught.

"Fundamentally, it is a demand that the church be really Christian. Likewise, I believe the anti-religion movement, even in Russia, is fundamentally a demand for reality in religion, though it looks negative, because organized religion under the Czars was so largely, as the communists have said, the 'narcotic of the people,' deliberately used to make the masses submissive under autocratic government.

"These negative watchwords have been most skillfully played up by Russian propaganda. Anti-capitalism, anti-imperialism, and anti-religion suggest at once Russian influence. But running through them all are constructive notes, which may to some extent be present, in the corresponding movements in Russia; and in particular there is the major note of patriotism, which, however, it may be present in communistic Russia, is overshadowed, if not denied, by communistic theory.

"These positive elements are what give friends of China ground to hope that China will outgrow her antagonisms, in so far as they are unduly exaggerated, and will take her place ultimately as a great constructive power in the family of nations.

THEATER-OWNING PLAN OF ZUKOR ASSAILED IN BRIEF

Attorney for Trade Commission Replying to Defense, Says South Is Closed to Competitors.

THEATER DEAL EVERY 48 HOURS

Famous Players Approved Plan to Dominate Region and Southern Enterprises Put It Through, He Says.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—W. H. Fuller, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, in his reply brief in the case of the Commission versus the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and other movie concerns, charged with violating the antitrust laws, denied he was attacking the motion-picture business. He explained his purpose is to see that every producer has a fair show under the law.

In a brief of 236 pages, filed yesterday, Fuller replies to the argument of counsel for the movie kings.

The action is against the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Real Art Pictures Corporation, the Stanley Co. of America, Stanley Booking Corporation, Black New England Theaters, Inc., Southern Enterprises, Inc., Sanger Amusement Co., Adolph Zukor, Jesse Lasky, Jules Mastrbaum, Alfred S. Black, Stephen A. Lynch and Ernest V. Richards Jr.

Summing up "his argument," Fuller said:

"The existence of three large companies in the picture business does not, because of the nature of the business and the manner in which the theaters owned by the several companies have been purchased, prove that any substantial competition exists therein, as might be the case in other industries. Respondents have acquired theaters in such numbers in important territories as to close that territory to competing producers, and distributors have to meet the terms made by respondents.

"In most industries, as in the steel industry, for instance, even though there were but three or four strong companies, they would be found competing with each other generally throughout the country.

"In the biscuit and cracker industry, two companies, National Biscuit and Lotus-Wells, do approximately 75 per cent of the business. These companies, however, meet each other in competition over practically the entire United States and in practically all communities of substantial size. There is no territorial monopoly in either company.

Theater Ownership?
"Not so in this industry. Respondents, through ownership of a large number of theaters in the Southern states and through the ownership of a large number of first-run theaters in this and other territories use all of their own pictures before purchasing any pictures of competitors; through the advantage of first-runs in these territories they practically exclude competitors of competing manufacturers, save as they are necessary to fill in the time not taken up by Paramount pictures, and in large measure they fix the prices of pictures of competing producers and distributors shown in these territories.

Fuller asserted this monopoly of theaters began in the South years ago, because it was easy to control the situation there.

"On April 30, 1919, Southern Enterprises was organized for the purpose of obtaining control of the theater situation in the Southern states," he said. "Between that date and Dec. 27, 1919, Southern Enterprises acquired and constructed for a total of 126 theaters. In other words, during this period of 291 days they averaged a theater and a fraction every 48 hours."

"To avoid responsibility," Fuller said, "Zukor's company made a strenuous effort 'to avoid responsibility in the coercion and undue methods that were used in the South to compel exhibitors to purchase pictures in blocks and to pay exorbitant prices therefor as a tribute for protection for their theaters.'"

This was made in answer to the question of the respondents that since Famous Players took over the control of Southern Enterprises on Dec. 30, 1922, Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has caused it to dispose of its interests in 59 theaters, most of which are located in the smaller towns.

"This attempt to avoid responsibility is a confession on the part of the Zukor company of the same methods exercised by Stephen

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Relief for Burk Family.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
WILL you kindly forward the enclosed amount of money to Mrs. Eura Burk and children? I read about them in your paper yesterday, Nov. 19.

THANK YOU.

(This $5 enclosed has been forwarded to the family at 1540 January avenue. The police reported that the mother and eight children were destitute, as the father was in a hospital at Rolla, Mo.—Ed. Post-Dispatch.)

State School Finances.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
GOV. BAKER takes the position that the State's interest in the education of its children is superior to the parents' interest in these same children. Let us see how the present system works out.

Certain revenues collected by the State are distributed to the various school districts in proportion to the number of children in the district. The more progressive districts augment this by assessing themselves a liberal levy, often the maximum allowed by law, and have good schools and modern buildings. The backward districts assess themselves the minimum levy allowed by law and have poor schools and dilapidated and often insanitary buildings and short terms of school.

Again with modern machinery, farmers can till more ground and farms are getting larger and fewer to a district and the tendency to smaller families obtains in the country as well as in the city, so that districts that have 15 to 20 pupils now have 15 to 20, sometimes only 10, and last spring we read of one that had only one pupil and had maintained a six-months school for him.

Now, it seems only fair if the State is going to see that all its children have ample and proper school facilities, that it should force these backward districts themselves to furnish more of the revenue by raising the minimum levy to more nearly what the better districts assess, and also that some form of combining districts be provided so that the number of pupils in a district would be enough to make a fair-sized school. Means of transportation have advanced and roads have been improved and many buildings are old and dilapidated so that consolidation would not be the hardship it would have been 20 years ago.

To summarize: the cities and business interests of the State are willing to help, but the farming districts should not expect help until they have done the best they can for themselves. We should have a sufficient highway system (I don't think it is) we should have a road district in the State to have its share of the $60,000,000 bond issue and the 2-cent gasoline tax to handle it as it saw fit, and unless there is the same unified State supervision of State school funds we will do as poorly with our farm schools.

FORMER COUNTRY SCHOOL TEACHER.

Intolerance, Past and Present.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
LESS than 100 years ago John Fox, founder of the Society of Friends, was jailed in England for starting a new religion.

Less than 300 years hence it will seem as absurd that men were jailed for using alcoholic beverages, as it does to us now that Fox was jailed for starting one of the great movements in history.

More Fourth Street Cars Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHAT'S wrong with the Fourth street cars going to Roosevelt High School? The service surely is terrible. There are about one Fourth to about 10 other cars which are on the same line. At Twelfth boulevard and Soudard street, where many of the students get on, the Fourth and Cherokee are on the same line and this morning we stood waiting for the car at 8 o'clock. Fully 10 Cherokee cars passed before a Fourth came dragging along. By this time it was 10 minutes after 8 o'clock.

We have been hearing this agony for many months and we sure wish that the street car company would put more Fourth on the line as the few that do come are packed.

A STUDENT OF ROOSEVELT HIGH.

Bus and Street Car Competition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE paper signing his letter "Reader" suggests that C. C. Schafer may be the owner of a car, or might have sufficient funds to make the additional three-cent ride in carfare seem insignificant. I have neither car nor funds, only the weekly salary I earn as an egghead. Of course I fully agree with "Reader" that it would be nice to put some on an even basis his way, but in these days of profligate it is utterly impossible to think of such a thing.

COOLIDGE SUPPORTS WORLD COURT.

When President Coolidge came into the presidency, he endorsed the policy of Mr. Harding for participation of the United States in the Permanent Court of International Justice. This was not only former President Harding's policy, but a policy formally approved by the Republican party.

The project, however, has languished. Although embodied in the Republican party's platform and in the Democratic platform, and endorsed by two Presidents, little effort was made to obtain congressional action. The Senate irreconcilables threatened war on the project, and the White House has been quiescent.

It is gratifying to note that President Coolidge has revived the issue and holds out the prospect of a vigorous effort to obtain decisive action.

In his speech to the New York State Chamber of Commerce, devoted mainly to the relations of business and government, he made a strong plea for our adherence to the court. He separated the question of our interfering in any way in the political affairs of other nations from that of our participation in the tribunal for administration of international justice. He said that our enormous and increasing interests abroad urged our participation, and added:

I can conceive of nothing that we could do which involves assuming so few obligations on our part, that would be likely to prove of so much value to the world. Beyond its practical effect, which might be somewhat small, it would have a sentimental effect, which would be tremendous. It would be public notice that the enormous influences of our country were to be cast upon the side of the enlightening processes of civilization. It would be the beginning of a new world spirit.

The President's argument is unanswerable. There is ample evidence of the rapid growth of sentiment among all elements of the American people in favor of participation in the court. The movement is nationwide. The outspoken declaration of President Coolidge will strengthen this sentiment. Already there are echoes of his expression of opinion from Republican leaders and Republican organizations.

We believe the time is ripe for a vigorous campaign and a signal victory. It will be a victory not only for liberal and progressive action and for American ideals, but for civilization.

ALEXANDRA.

Alexandra was the daughter, wife and mother of kings. Her whole life of four-score years was spent in the realms of royalty, and she was a lovely and a gracious lady forever concerned with the welfare of the subjects over which she was destined to reign. We know comparatively little of Alexandra. She was well into middle age before Victoria, that overshadowing figure, died. And for the nine years in which she shared the throne of England with Edward, her personality continued to be obscured by her husband's dash, brilliance and great popularity. In 1910, she relinquished her queenly prerogatives to the Princess Mary, and retired to the quietude of Marlborough House and Sandringham.

As Princess, Queen and Queen Mother, Alexandra found a continuing interest in charitable and philanthropic work, and for that her name is dear to the heart of England. We know of her great devotion to the wounded during the war; perhaps we shall never know the agony of her soul during the period when the country of her nephew, the Kaiser, was waging war against the country of her nephew, the Czar, and that of her son, the King. It was a full and womanly life that Alexandra lived, and she passed on with the affection of an empire to comfort and relieve her last hours.

WHAT, INDEED!

George H. Jones used to work in a knitting mill for 35 cents a day. Now he is chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, at a salary of $125,000 a year. A close scrutiny of his career reveals no clue as to the causes of his success. He is not an ex-football hero—his alma mater is Chaffee's Photographic Inst., Oswego, N. Y. He is not a son-in-law of John D. He never wore a yellow slicker or Oxford bags. His father was not a rich oil man. He did not begin life as a bond salesman. He does not play polo and, so far as we know, he plays only a fair game of bridge. He has never been sued for breach of promise. The golf of one who has worked so hard, day and night, for 35 years must be terrible. In short, what inspiration does the career of George H. Jones offer for the college sheik today?

SOMETHING ELSE TO JOIN.

A comprehensive analysis of the crime situation in America was offered by Richard Washburn Child in "The Great American Scandal," which recently ran its serial course in the Saturday Evening Post. His conclusion that there is no panacea will be accepted, too, by all save those eager souls who hope to curb the crime wave by enacting another law. Even his hope that an aroused public opinion promises greatest relief will be shared by many, and the suggestion that communities organize for the purpose will meet a wide response.

America needs better law enforcement. No lengthy dissertation was needed to make that plain. Court dockets and newspapers crowded with crime news had left no doubt about it. America may have better law enforcement when there are fewer laws, fewer indiscriminate pardons and paroles, and an improved judicial system. Public opinion can be an influence for these betterments, but it is doubtful if anything will be gained by paying dues and electing officers to provide for such expression of opinion. Americans are the world's greatest joiners, and coat lapels should be made larger to provide a suitable background for the buttons the average citizen is entitled to wear, and a few more grips and passwords wouldn't add greatly to the congestion.

But there is weakness as well as strength in organization. No matter what noble influence may foster the enrollment of this group or that, enthusiasm too often wanes after the initiation or first mass meeting, and the work is left to an enthusiastic few, with a hobby to ride, or selfish ends to serve. Despite the number of organizations, or because of this plethora, virtually all are minority organizations, and this matter of law enforcement is one for the majority; one that must have the preponderance of public opinion, if it is to succeed. This majority cannot be landed on a dotted line, nor rallied by a single slogan. Perhaps it will refuse to be aroused, but those who think Utopia will result from joining something or other should remember the likelihood of a rainy day and save the initiation fee.

TOLERANCE AT MINNEAPOLIS.

There is a tolerance that is merely apathy. That is not the kind of tolerance manifested by certain broadminded clergymen of Minneapolis, who have made up their minds that it is time to do something to counteract the evil influence of the Ku Klux Klan in the Northwest country, and especially in their own city, where it has a numerous membership.

Nothing could be more practical and impressive than the agreement of these clergymen, representing the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths, to direct the publication of a "tolerance" edition of the Minneapolis Daily Star Nov. 24. This newspaper has a circulation of over 57,000, but the value of the experiment will be greatly augmented by the publicity which will follow in the press all over the country.

The editors of this edition will be Rev. James Reardon, pastor of the Catholic pro-Cathedral; Dr. C. David Matt, rabbi of a Jewish synagogue; Rev. G. K. Stark, pastor of a Scandinavian Lutheran church; Rev. Harry P. Dewey, pastor of a Presbyterian church, and Rev. Roy L. Smith, pastor of a Methodist church. Each will furnish a signed editorial on a subject of his own choosing, but in each instance the writer will take space to denounce intolerance of other religious faiths. And the entire newspaper of that day will be under their supervision.

Such an object lesson as this was needed, because, appealing to the selfish fears that give rise to class and religious hatred, the Ku Klux Klan has been able to make dangerous headway in the Northwest, having in Denver and Colorado, in less than four years, captured both political parties, one branch of the legislature, the city administration, and the State government. It would be well if the clergy of many other cities should follow the example of their Minneapolis brethren and do their share in stemming the tide of religious intolerance.

ABOLISHING THE SUBMARINE.

The measure of success that will attend the movement begun by a number of prominent Britishers to abolish the submarine as a weapon of war depends very largely upon whether French naval thought has undergone any change since 1921.

It will be recalled that at the Washington limitation of armament conference in that year all the Powers represented, with the exception of Italy and France, were in a frame of mind to act decisively. Lord Lee frankly admitted that the submarine was "the greatest menace to the food supplies of Great Britain."

Such was the disappointment of the British that their First Lord of the Admiralty openly asked whether France did not, in fact, approve of the German use of the submarine, citing a remarkable article by Capt. Castex, a high naval officer, that appeared in 1920 in an official French publication, which unreservedly endorsed the German policy as sound.

This defense of the submarine was concluded by Capt. Castex in this sinister manner:

After many centuries, thanks to the ingenuity of man, the instrument, the system, the martingale is at hand which will overthrow for good and all the naval power of England.

Although Admiral de Bon, naval expert of the French delegation, promptly denied that Capt. Castex's views were those of the French Navy, the French, backed by the Italians, rendered any decisive action impossible.

Yet as long as peoples permit their Governments to make wars it is vain to place too much confidence upon paper prohibitions against the use of effective weapons. In a life and death struggle necessity knows no laws, conventional or others.

WE CAN'T STOP HER, BISHOP.

Good Bishop Denny of the Methodist Church is affirmed, as, indeed, he well may be. He thinks man is being crowded out of the picture by aggressive, impossible woman. Women, he notes, have usurped so many of men's manners and customs. The masculine hair cut, knickers, the vote, the cigar. Presently, he fears, man will have no sign or attribute to differentiate him from the inferior sex. Bishop Denny, however, has a scheme. He advises man to revive the obsolete mustache. Not these little filmy tracteries that were the vogue some time ago and are still occasionally seen. No dislocated eyebrow, the Bishop has in mind, but a broad, flowing, robust, sweeping, 100 per cent he-mustache. There's something the women could not ape, he argues.

How does he know they couldn't? Of course they never have. But then they never bobbed their hair until recently, or wore knickers—which, by the way, Bishop, they have discarded—or voted or smoked cigars. Only a little while ago they had never mixed a Martini, to say nothing of a Bronx. But they can sure mix 'em now, can't they, Bishop? And drink 'em, too, as well you know.

Might it not be so with the mustache? You may say it can't be done, Bishop. You may say that in the fair lexicon of woman there is no such word as mustache. You may say it is not in her biology. All right, Bishop. Have it your way as far as we're concerned. But, remember, there is still the lady to reckon with. Remember, too, she scales the old hurdles, scrapes the old injunctions, scoffs at the old inhibitions.

Without junking biology she has espoused tryology. There is no stopping her, Bishop.

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"Now and then one sees something in the papers that gives one hope of humankind," Mr. Antwine said.

"You know we despair of humankind when we recall how old the world is and how long we have had the benefit of wisdom. The Old Testament is full of it. Even before Tutankhamen was wrapped in his golden shroud and put away for the delight of archeology people knew that peace is a good thing, that virtue is its own reward, that honesty is the best policy, that prevention beats cure, that a stitch in time saves nine, that the devil finds mischief for idle hands, that ill fares the land to hastening ill a prey where wealth accumulates and men decay, etc., etc."

"We despair of humankind when we ask ourselves why it has not availed itself of all that wisdom. We wonder if it is ever going to do the sensible thing when we realize that in five or ten thousand years it has never been able to make a single ideal permanent or give a single proverb or precept the applause of general practice. However, about the time we are disposed to groan and give up we see something encouraging. For instance, listen to this newspaper item. One of the Generals in China employs the lull between battles in teaching his soldiers the useful trades and crafts. When they are not fighting they are learning to make and lay bricks, build houses, bake bread, make molasses candy, play the oboe, practice medicine, do mathematics, interpret law, write poetry, till the soil, make love, etc., etc., comprising at length all the attributes of civilization."

"Let us say that all Generals had done this from the time of Caesar; that every army post, in addition to being a mere military school, were a school in fact; that when we were not having war we were teaching the soldiers and sailor arts and vocations more useful than war. Imagine what a place the world would be by this time! How far from its present warring state, its hordes of armed men in idleness, its unpreparedness after war for the arts of peace!"

"I hope this particular Chinese General wins the war in China. If he does and puts all the other Chinese soldiers into manual, domestic and professional training, I will go farther and hope that China to turn conquer the world. The world needs it," Mr. Antwine said.

Gen. Sarraill says the Syrian revolt is only an episode in a great Moslem movement, which shows whether or not the European Powers are having any success at working up a holy war.

Sir: The Jewish Hispanophile who orates your column has a rather jaundiced historical outlook. As a contemporary of the World War, he undoubtedly recalls the wave of hatred and persecution which followed our entrance into that conflict; also he probably views the more recent phenomenon of Ku Kluxism and its sometimes able apologists with justified indignation. Suppose then, for comparison's sake, he take himself back to the rude days of the Inquisition, when Spain, after seven centuries of warfare, finally drove the Saracens back to Africa. To those many generations of Spanish warriors, the crusades against the Moslem were both of a racial and religious nature: death in battle meant a Christian martyrdom, just as to the Moor it meant the seventh heaven and a bery of hours. Can we altogether scorn a united Spain for the arrogant nationalism and emotional spirituality which swept over it, especially when we compare it with the bigotry and chauvinism of our own times? Even as late as the seventeenth century Cervantes more than once has Sancho Panza emphasize that he is a "limpless," a "pure blood" of old Christian stock, and therefore more to be believed and relied on. If the Spaniard looked with suspicion upon the Jew, who grew rich trading impartially with Moor and Spaniard and who abandoned his Judaism in public and practiced it in private, was he altogether wrong?

Every nation has had its Inquisition in one form or other, whether it was the Hebrew of old, medieval Spain, Fascist Italy or Bolshevist Russia. And looking down the hoary vista of the centuries, does not one outstanding fact repeatedly crop out, and that is that hatred and tyranny do not pay!

ABOUT BEN ADHEM.

Is that great traveler Count Keyserling, a poet? Read this:
"This morning, long before the sun became visible, I saw the giants of the Himalayas catch its rays. The earth lay invisible in the darkness of night; at the height of clouds, pale mists floated along in the uncertain twilight. The summits of the Himalayas, however, high, high above the clouds, began to glow at the first greetings of the day. I have never faced such overwhelming sublimity. The Himalayas are not a mountainous group like others; it seems as if the moon had burst and suddenly planted itself upon the green earth, so comically placed, so unearthly, so out of all relations with the manifestations of this planet do they appear."

Boss Butler of the Republican National Committee says the Republicans will have to fight to hold their own in the Congressional elections, but he broadcasts the assurance that the battle will turn out just as it did last year. Meaning, of course, that the people who gave the money that won last year's battle have plenty of more money.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to represent without bias the latest comment by leading publicists, newspaper editors and columnists on the questions of the day.

INTER-RACIAL HARMONY.

From the Kansas City Times.

INTER-RACIAL councils, bodies composed of serious-thinking men, women of the white and colored races, have been formed in many parts of the country, particularly in the South, where the so-called racial problem chiefly exists. But these bodies have been at work in Kansas City. Recently, an inter-racial work was formed in Kansas City, with the object of co-operation, racial harmony and mutual racial betterment. In 48 percent of the counties of the South these councils are at work. W. W. Adams, secretary of the Inter-Racial Council of the Federal Council of Churches, is of the discovery that racial difficulties have grown out of wrong mental attitudes and misunderstandings on the part of the races. At present, Adams says, the animosities are co-operating in the work. Dr. Alexander says at least 100 leagues in the South have formed inter-racial leagues. Negro speakers visit the cities and other places, in that section and elsewhere, where in the country, and tell the Negro Whites and White Negroes of the "American Life." It is declared that the unification of the forces working for good will there have come not only new relations, but improved living and working conditions for negroes.

MORE WEALTH, MORE WORK.

From the New York Evening Post.

MANY persons are worried over the present prosperity of these United States. This prosperity is shown by the trolley Joseph Macintosh, in Washington, in his report on the banking situation, says the $885 financial institutions of the country have $24,569,527,000 of money, which is about all the money we need present. At the same time Bishop Field of Chattanooga, tells the Board of Bishops in Buffalo, that the "Roman while Arthur Henderson, the labor leader, at a farewell dinner in city, complains of the wealth of the United States as the cause of the lag and drag of the world's progress. So it would appear that when we are rich we don't know how to think about it.

MORE ATTRACTIVE PLAYGROUNDS.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

A Recreation Association of America is stimulating the appropriate landscaping of border planting of play fields designed to widest public attention and support. A plan if widely carried out should result to residential neighborhoods a green which very frequently has been neglected, a nuisance by those living nearby. The fact that playgrounds are "made out" by trees and shrubbery and some time a bare and not too attractive may be converted into a beautiful thing alike to the users, the neighborhood and those who pass it by.

An American Cousin of Girls in "Wild Geese."

A REVIEW BY

THE "back-to-the-soil" movement inaugurated perhaps by the Scandinavians—or was it the Russians?—has caught on with a firm hold. Twice within the last year or so a farm novel has won distinctive honors. First it was "The Able McLaughlins," by Margaret Wilson, which captured the Harper prize for the best novel of the year; and now "Wild Geese," the greatest prize ever awarded in this country. At least, has been awarded to Martha Ostenso for "Wild Geese," a story of country life in the Far North, published by Dodd, Mead & Co.

I do not mean to say that nothing has been done before this with American rural life. A great deal has been done. In fact, some of our best fiction has been laid in rural settings. William Dean Howells, Edward Eggleston, Hamlin Garland, Owen Wister, Willa Cather and Sherwood Anderson are a few of the serious writers who have interpreted the American pioneer and farmer. They have opened up the field in which our present writers are reaping so rich a harvest, a harvest due partly, as has been suggested, to "The Growth of the Soil," "The Peasants" and other Continental novels of this type.

The story of "Wild Geese" is seen through the eyes of the young school teacher who boards at the farm of Caleb Grange. His prosperity in that bleak farming region has left Caleb but one emotion—the desire for more and more land. He is ruthless, cunning and brutal. His wife and children, worn down with the drudgery of the farm, are completely under his sway, all except one splendid daughter, Judith, who dares to rebel. This struggle forms the main artery of the story. The girl is an audacious young animal, doing two men's work in the fields, and possessed of all the spirit of one of the colts in her father's barn—and no more of the subtlety. She is the most convincing

This Frenchman Is Sophisticated, But No Scandalmonger

A Review by A. W. King.

SOME American novelists and short-story writers, who demand much fair, white paper trying to exhibit a complete and wondrous sophistication, should read attentively the works of Paul Morand. This talented Frenchman really is sophisticated, but he peddles no small-town scandals, manures about no grand passions between insignificant "stupid, tiresome characters." The unconventional in people, and in situations he observes for a bright-eyed moment or two, then smiles and turns away. He has seen such things before; they are old, uninteresting, prolonged attention. A few vivid sentences, generously seasoned with irony, and he passes on to something else. Note Morand's aplomb, if you please, and then certain American authors as they dash their pages with much lovingly and "rebuscantly" tedious, Morand's books suggest that, even in the realm of sophistication, to be a real master of the world and an artist may help to achievement in writing.

"Closed All Night" is an English translation of four sketches by Paul Morand, which comes from the publishing house of Thomas Seltzer. Resembling in plan his earlier book, "Open All Night," which was so much admired about two years ago, Morand does not intend to repeat the same old story. War in his ears. The echo is fainter now, because the war is further behind us, and "Closed All Night" leaves a better taste in the mouth than his predecessor did. But the up-to-date and generally applicable has influenced the lives of his characters, have left upon them an indelible tinge.

In his witty, vivacious style, Morand writes sketches around four men of different nationalities. These are creatures, but of fascinating interest. Morand does not for a moment present them as typical of their respective races. Incidentally

Dr. Snider's Novel of Pre-Civil War Days

Republished in St. Louis

"FREEDBURG AND THE FREEBURGERS," a novel written ten many years ago by Dr. Danton J. Snider and long out of print, has been republished in an attractive form by the William H. Miner Co., St. Louis. The tale of a midwestern town called Freedburg figure in the narrative which sets forth vividly the great dispute that agitated the minds of the people in the years immediately preceding the Civil War. Two factions arose in Freedburg. One for obeying the fugitive slave law, the other for defying the dictates of conscience. The higher law, the burning question of the day was "Is my first allegiance duty and conscience, or to the Constitution and laws of my country?" Today a similar problem divides the American people into two camps. The prohibition against the sale of the slave, and the enforcement of this law, is the subject of this novel.

MUSIC

Ganz Prospers With First
Brahms Symphony—Rachmaninoff's Recital.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

If an orchestra director's way with a symphony should be judged first by its treatment of the slow movement, then Rudolph Ganz won a signal triumph yesterday afternoon with the First Symphony of Johannes Brahms. Under his newly awakened baton, the lyrical Andante sostenuto was not merely a professional performance—it was an interpretation, sensitive and poetic. Notable was the stately, supple, firm and resilient tone of the orchestra.

The quality of refined workmanship was audible throughout the symphony, with special praise due for the quietly ominous introduction, and the brisk precision of the concluding allegro. A large audience repeated this enjoyable and at times thrilling performance with prolonged applause.

Steindl's Luscious Tone.

H. Max Steindl, leader of the orchestra's violoncello choir, appeared as soloist in Schumann's not particularly exciting concerto in A Minor, Op. 125. This youthful adept draws with the cello bow a suave and mellow tone, with little of the "whine" characteristic of the instrument. In addition to confident technique in the livelier episodes, Mr. Steindl gave the Andante with sonful expression. His encore was a transcription of Schumann's lied, "Du bist wie eine Blume." The orchestral part of the concerto was deftly played.

In contrast to the remainder of the program, the opening number, Tachlakowsky's overture-fantasia on "Romeo and Juliet," suffered from much roughness of detail. The director appeared to labor restlessly, but the outcome was curiously lackadaisical. An intent

Music Newly Minted.

A musical day so auspiciously begun came to a perfect end last night with Sergei Rachmaninoff's pianoforte recital at the Odeon. The famous Russian once more performed the exploit of making music as fresh, bright and clear as if it had just issued, newly coined, from the mint of its creator's genius.

A composer of eminence himself, Rachmaninoff meets other composers on equal terms, and is able to divine the meaning of their thought to the very last syllable. Fortunately, he has the pianistic equipment to render his analyses to others with the utmost lucidity, eloquence and beauty.

His program, with little emotional profundity, illustrated the pianist's infallible acumen, his impeccable taste, his miraculous delicacy and grace of fingering, his endless pliancy of pace and strength, his chiming loveliness of tone.

Rach, in the gayest of secular moods, opened the program with a Partita, or suite, in D Major, with two magnificent dances, a saraband and a gigue. The latter, with its flashing counterpoint, is a measure fit to be danced by archangels. Nothing more youthfully fresh and exquisite could sparkle from a pianist's fingers than the performance of Schubert's Impromptu, Op. 90, No. 4.

Jazzed a Schubert Song. Then, with sedatest humor, the somber Slav presented his own transcription of Schubert's song, "The Brooklet." To the surprise of the audience, it proved that Rachmaninoff had rendered this classic chanson into refined jazz. Not only was it daintily syncretized, but it was ornamented with delicate imitations of the eccentric floriture of jazz, such as portamentos and a brilliant two-measure coda.

One of Chopin's minor sonatas followed—B Minor, Op. 58—with a mazurka by the same composer for encore. Liszt was represented by his sentimental "Consolidation," his impish "Dance of the Gnomes"—a portent of swift, crisp playing and his showy "Heroica."

Variations on "Liebeslied." Then followed a "Fairy Tale" of Nicholas Medtner, and Rachmaninoff's own "Etude Tableaux" and "Prelude"—not the notorious one.

Next Rachmaninoff presented what he termed a transcription of his own from Kreisler's familiar "Liebeslied." It was more than a transcription—it was a creative set of variations presenting the air in numerous original aspects of harmony, melody and rhythm.

The customary furor of applause at the end brought three encores—Tachlakowsky's "Troika," Beethoven's "Turkish March" from "The Ruins of Athens" and Rachmaninoff's arrangement of Mousorgsky's "Hopak."

There was some curiosity as to whether the pianist's vogue depression would be affected by the current depression in concert attendance. Except for the affairs of the Civic Music League, the audience was the largest seen at a recital this season, but it was by no means the capacity house usually assembled for Rachmaninoff.

Children's Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess

The Hunted Hunter

The hunter may be hunted
And never once suspect
His every step be noted
Yet he no one detect.

—Lightfoot the Deer.

"He doesn't know enough to be afraid," thought the hunter.

THE hunter who had started out to hunt for Buster Bear, and then had been so startled by Buster that he had forgotten to shoot, knew that he was not at all likely to have another chance that day or for many days. Hunting for Buster Bear now would be a waste of time. So he decided that he would just tramp around as silently as he could and trust to luck that he would surprise someone else. Perhaps he might get a shot at Yowler the Bob Cat or at Reddy Fox or Lightfoot the Deer. He would prefer Lightfoot.

So, with his gun ready for instant use, that hunter moved slowly through the Green Forest. He set each foot down with the greatest care so as not to step on a dry twig and snap it. He took care that no brush should scrape against him and make a noise. He kept his ears open for every little sound, and his eyes peered sharply in every direction. He was hunting as only a good hunter can hunt. From time to time he tested the wind so as to keep it always blowing toward him. In that way his scent would not be carried to any of those he was hunting for.

But with all his care he saw no living thing at which to shoot. It was just as if there were no little people in the Green Forest. It was as still as only the Green Forest can be at times. Not even Chatterer, the Red Squirrel, appeared to scold him. The only person that hunter saw was Prickly Porky, and, as the hunter said, "he didn't count." Prickly Porky was in the top of a small poplar tree eating bark, and he hardly stopped long enough to look down at that hunter.

"He don't know enough to be afraid," thought the hunter. But in this he was mistaken. The truth was, Prickly Porky knew too much to be afraid. He knew that hunter wouldn't shoot him. So he kept right on with his business, which was to strip the bark from that little poplar tree.

But if that hunter thought there was no one about he was mistaken. He himself was being hunted. He didn't know it, but it was so. The little people of the Green Forest knew that it is easier to avoid danger when you know where danger is. Even Buster

Bear himself was eager to know that hunter was about, so as soon as he had recovered from his fright he began to hunt for that hunter. He began by moving silently in a big circle until the Merry Little Breeze tickled his nose with the man's scent. Then he made a face, showed all his teeth, growled to himself and started to follow up that scent until his nose told him that he was near enough to that hunter.

Lightfoot the Deer did very much the same thing, only he stole forward to where he could see that hunter and just what he did and at the same time keep out of Buster Bear's way. Even Yowler the Bob Cat, keeping to the thickest and darkest thickets, crept along as only a Cat can, watching every move that hunter made. Sammy Jay followed silently through the tops of the trees and Blacky the Crow perched in the tops of high trees, from which he could see some distance through the Green Forest. In a way, they were all hunting the hunter. They were keeping track of him so that no one would unsuspectingly give him a chance to use that terrible gun.

There were times when that hunter had a feeling that he was being watched. He didn't know why he had that feeling, but he did have it. Then he would stand still for the longest time and listen with all his might and look with all his might. But with all his listening and all his looking he heard and saw none of the little people. Not even the little birds came near him. By the time he reached the edge of the Green Forest he actually was feeling lonesome. It was a relief to hear Sammy Jay suddenly begin to scream at the top of his lungs: "Thief! thief! thief! thief!" It was Sammy's way of letting all the other people in the Green Forest know that that hunter was leaving the Green Forest and there no longer was need to hunt him.

King's Pie.

Select a young and tender chicken weighing 3½ pounds. Clean and cut up as for frying, then place in a saucepan, cover with cold water and cook until tender, adding a few sprigs of celery and an onion to the water. When done, lift the chicken and when slightly cool remove all the large bones. Throw bones and trimmings into the broth, adding a small can of tomatoes, and added seasoning including another onion and a dessert spoonful of sugar. Cook for a half hour then strain the broth and cool it. When cold, remove the grease and reheat, then thicken with brown roux. Now add the meat, a sliced hard-boiled egg, a cupful of fresh mushrooms, and a cupful of raisins and chopped pecan nuts. Line a deep buttered pudding dish with good, short crust, fill it with the chicken mixture, using as much of the gravy as the pie will hold, then lattice the top with inch wide strips of the crust. Bake until the pastry is done.

Every man's life is a fairy tale written by God's fingers.—Hans Christian Andersen.

THE DATE TREE

By ERNEST SEEMAN

Nov. 21, 1774—151 years ago—The executioner at Strasbourg is awakened at midnight. Three men, evidently of rank, command him to bring his sword and accompany them blindfolded to a waiting carriage. Some time later his eyes were unbandaged in a castle hall where stood a scaffold. Without delay a young woman, heavily veiled, was led in, her hands and legs bound, and the executioner was ordered to behead her. This he did at one stroke, and after being handsomely rewarded was blindfolded and conveyed home. Private annals of the Bavarian court have since revealed that the chief actor in the tragedy was the Duke of Wuertemberg, and the woman his disgraced sister, Princess Elizabeth.

DO'S AND DON'TS FOR BUSINESS WOMEN

By NELLIE E. GARDNER

THERE is nothing so humble as failure. There is nothing so proud as success. Never admit your failure by being humble when you have no right to be.

Proper conceit is an essential attribute on the road to success. Be sure that you have your full measure.

In the old days when long skirts and "mutton-leg" sleeves were in fashion, humility was crowned as a feminine virtue.

That was before the saxophone and the airplane motor. Today it takes a real "hum" to make a success in business. But, mistake not, back of that hum must be the driving power of a real motor. And its cylinders must all be working on time and in tune.

Nothing is a greater incentive to the originality and push that spell success in business than proper conceit. Know how to do your work well, whether it is adding figures or budding geraniums. And then do not let any one bluff you out of the assurance that should be yours.

Read history—classical as well as current.

Whose are the names that are remembered? Are they not the men and women whose contemporaries probably called them "conceited?"

Better be remembered for your conceit than for your fear. As long as you develop yourself in the right direction and attain the goal, which you fixed with your spy-glass long ago, what need you care what names your jealous friends call you by?

Show me the person who is truly successful and I will show you one who is truly, and rightly, conceited. Without belief in yourself can come no great achievement. And that is all conceit really is—knowing that you can do a certain thing and then going ahead and doing it!

Conceit without delivery is like a bark without a dog.

Be sure that you are not all bark.

But be sure, also, that you will know how to make your personality felt when it is wise and necessary.

Exercising the bark, occasionally, keeps it in good trim. Just for practice sake, and to care for the ever-possible emergency, see that you keep yours in good voice!

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Glove Mending.

Tuck a clothespin into the finger of the glove to be darned. It is just as good as a darning ball for stockings.

In a Good Cause.

A pin stuck through the cork of the bottle containing poison may give the person searching for medicine a tiny scratch, but it surely will draw their attention to the contents of the bottle.

Borax First.

Before washing lace curtains soak them for an hour in cold water to which three tablespoonfuls of borax have been added. It will loosen dirt and soil and also remove dressing from new curtains.

Answers Two Purposes.

A kitchen calendar with large figures may be used as a date book for the housewife. Put down the initials of the expected guest on the date when the engagement is made, then you won't forget it when catering.

Steak With Mushrooms.

Prepare and broil the steak as usual. Wipe, peel and cut the large, fresh mushrooms into convenient pieces, then saute them in butter, dust with pepper and salt and turn them over the steak. Or they can be put into a smooth, rich tomato or cream sauce. Serve fried mashed potato cakes with the steak.

Empty Chairs

"One of the chairs is South America,
One of the chairs is a ship at sea,
One is a cage for a great big lion,
And one is a chair for me."

Sit in life's twilight—when the lights are low—and the empty chairs stare you in the face. Who are your visitors? Can you people those chairs with the faces of those whom you have helped to make happier?

GIRL STRUCK DOWN
DESPITE ACTIVITY

City Terror-Struck by Painted Prowler Who
Mutters "Fickle Women
That Should Be Killed."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 21.—The greatest man hunt in the history of Toledo and Lucas County got under way here today. Police, firemen, citizens and special officers had searched the city for days without finding a clue, but tonight 1000 members of the American Legion helped police comb the city for the club murderer who has struck down nine women in the past 10 days, two of whom subsequently died of fractured skulls.

And while the search was in progress the slagger attacked Miss Loretta Braun, 13 years old. He clubbed her on the head in the front yard of her home. She was found unconscious and was rushed to a hospital in a serious condition. She was the clubber's tenth victim.

All his victims describe the man as "beast-like, more than 6 feet tall, dark, with long woolly hair, protruding front teeth." He is supposed to be a madman. Credence is given this theory by a report that he has painted his face a dark red, with deep circles under his eyes. He has a prominent hooked nose.

Police Suppress Reports.
The entire city is terror-stricken. Police officials are endeavoring to suppress reports of the man's activities. Chief Harry Jennings and Inspector William Delehanty this afternoon denied that two women had been attacked last night. They declared that one of the women was deluded and that the other described she had been attacked. But the two dead and five seriously injured women are no delusion.

Only women have been molested. Not once since the appearance of the madman here has he even threatened a man or child.

Mrs. Frank Hall was first to encounter the clubber. Attacked in front of her home, she suffered a fractured skull, broken nose and other injuries. She has been in bed ever since and her condition is serious.

Mrs. Emma Hatfield and Mrs. Lydia Baumgartner also were clubbed. They died of their injuries. Both were attacked on the street and, in dying statements, gave identical descriptions of their assailant.

Three Other Victims.
Mrs. Cora Bachelor met the lunatic as she was returning to her home and was struck down. She has a broken nose and facial lacerations. Miss Frieda Drahm is in critical condition. Miss Wilma Headley also is in critical condition. Both become hysterical when the killer's activities are mentioned.

Last night the clubber crept into the back yard of a home on Park avenue and struck down Mrs. Catherine Knight. When she stepped out to empty a pail of garbage, when her screams attracted her husband the killer climbed over a back fence and beat a retreat.

While special police details searched the neighborhood, the maniac appeared downtown, more than two miles from the Knight home. Miss Pauline Winkler was seated in a parked automobile waiting for her escort when the madman appeared. He opened the door of the machine and tried to pull her out. She screamed and the man knocked her unconscious. Police rushed to the scene and surrounded the block, but the maniac eluded them.

Mutters "Fickle Women."
Women are afraid to venture forth at night. According to newspaper accounts furnished by his victims, the crazed man mutters about "fickle women that should be killed" before he swings his club.

Chief Jennings accepted the American Legion's offer of armed ex-service men to assist police in rounding up the maniac. In addition, it is believed he will also accept the offer of Sheriff Emmert to lead a force of deputies to the Police Department.

It is planned to have the ex-soldiers, police, firemen and deputy sheriffs patrol the streets at all hours of the day and night while they endeavor to discover where the killer lives.
